

The Institute of Biological Chemistry of the University of Vienna is looking for a talented and ambitious PhD students with a strong background in Synthetic Chemistry, Chemical Biology and/or Pharmacology to join the Neuropeptide Research Group led by A/Prof. Markus Muttenthaler. The group is focused on the exploration of nature's biodiversity to develop molecular probes and discover novel therapeutic leads with applications in pain, cancer, memory, autism, gastrointestinal disorders and neurodegenerative diseases.

To see the full position listing including more information on potential projects, please go to <https://www.neuropeptidelab.com/opportunities>.

To apply for this position, please send your application package (cover letter, CV, grade transcripts) to markus.muttenthaler@univie.ac.at with 'Application for PhD – Chemical Biology' in the subject line.